

What We Believe

Every human life has value. Each human life and the people connected to it deserve access to knowledge, resources and support to assist during times of medical and personal crisis.

We create a culture of caring using three main principles:

Compassion

All people are entitled to be treated with dignity, respect and equality.

Community

All people are entitled to information, education and support in order to find answers, get assistance and make informed decisions that respect their individual needs, beliefs and values.

Care

All people are entitled to receive the care they require. A person is a physical, psychological, social and spiritual being—each of these areas requires the appropriate care.

> Helpline: 1-855-675-8749

The Compassionate Community Care (CCC) helpline provides advice, help and support regarding euthanasia and assisted suicide prevention and end-of-life treatment issues.

“Being With”

We are developing a program called, “Being With,” to train volunteers to care for the psychological, social and spiritual needs of people with chronic or end-of-life conditions.
